HERRINGS' REVERSING

CENTRE DISCHARGE

Water Wheel,

Patented October 29th, 1867.

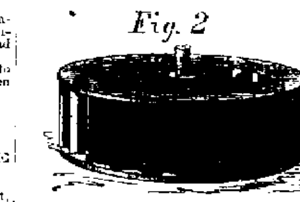

Figure 2 is a perspective view of the wheel, showing the long bucket extending from the periphery of the wheel, to the centre, and the short bucket reaching from the periphery to the inner edge of the lower rim. The buckets both long and short are radial at their outer ends where the water impinges upon them.

This wheel has been introduced into a number of the best mills for making lumber on the Penobscot River within the last two years, and for power and economy in the use of water together with simplicity in its construction and durability, it is the most desirable wheel in the market.

The HINCKLEY & EGERY Iron Co. of this city are prepared to furnish six different sizes from 4 to 7 feet in diameter, and from 18 to 22 inches depth of bucket. All orders addressed to them will be promptly attended to; and for rights to manufacture them in other sections of the country. Address,

Timber Lands

And Mill Property

FOR SALE.

THE subscriber, desirous of disposing of all his interest in Timber Lands and mills, will sell on favorable terms the following

One-Half Township No. 5, Range 4, Oxford County.

The whole township contains twenty six thousand (26,000) acres; is heavily timbered with spruce, estimated at sixty to eighty millions, all of which stands within near and easy hauling distance of the Magalloway river or its branches, which runs through the town, or Parmacheena Lake, which is embraced within its limits.

Also 16,000 Acres of Land in the Town of Byron, Oxford Co.,

well covered with large Spruce timber. Swift river and its branches run through these lands and empty into the Androscoggin below Rumford Falls.

Also 1100 Acres Timber and Wood Land in Town of Gorham, N. H.

two miles above the Alpine House, on the line of the Grand Trunk Railroad, and the banks of the Androscoggin river. There is a large quantity of wood on these lots which, from its proximity to the Railroad, is steadily increasing in value.

Also 2500 Acres Lands in the Towns of Albany and Stoneham.

near the village of North Waterford, Oxford County. This land is covered with thrifty sapling Pine timber, standing near Crooked river, which runs through the tract. Logs put into Crooked river can be run to Saccarappa, or by hauling four to five miles they can be put into the Saco. There is a good mill privilege, with a single saw mill on the tract; distance to the canal at Harrison ten miles; to the railroad at South Paris twelve miles. The land is valuable for settling purposes after being cleared of timber.

Also 435 Shares of Stock in the Lewiston Steam Mill Company, the whole capital stock being represented by 85? shares. The property of the company consists of a Steam Saw Mill, capable of manufacturing five million feet of long lumber, with a proportionate amount of clapboards, shingles and laths. About fifteen acres land in the city of Lewiston, well located for building purposes, and thirty thousand acres of timber land, well located on the Androscoggin river and its branches, from which but a small quantity of the timber has been cut.

Mild, certain, safe, efficient. It is far the best Cathartic remedy yet discovered, and at once relieves and invigorates all the vital functions, without causing injury to any of them. The most complete success has long attended its use in many localities; and it is now offered to the general public with the conviction that it can never fail to accomplish all that is claimed for it. It produces little or no pain; leaves the organs free from irritation, and never over taxes or excites the nervous system. In all diseases of the skin, blood, stomach, bowels, liver kidneys,—of children, and in many difficulties peculiar to women, it brings prompt relief and certain cure. [illegible]

LOST AT SEA.

The N. Y. Times gives the following list of missing Steamships from the loss of the President in 1841, up to the disappearance of the City of Boston:

The President, which left New York March 11, 1841, having among her passengers Tyrone Power, the comedian, a son of the Duke of Richmond, and other noted persons, is in this dismal catalogue, and so is the City of Glasgow, lost in 1854, and the Pacific in 1856; but we recollect no other vessels of similar character that have so vanished and "left not a rack behind." Consequently the chances would seem to be that as in the cases of the troopship Birkenherd and the packets St. George, Central America, Sarah Sands, Austria, Anglo-Saxon and London, a greater or less number of the passengers of the two missing crafts may have been saved.

Such, it will be remembered, was also the fact as regards the Lady Elgin, sunk by collision Lake Michigan, Sept. 8, 1860. Of her 385 passengers, 237 perished, among whom were Mr. Herbert Ingram, M. P., the founder of the Illustrated London News, and his son. Of the passengers and crew of the Hungarian, on the other hand, which was wrecked on the coast of Nova Scotia, Feb. 19, of the same year, all on board were lost. The Birkenhead, wrecked off Simon's Bay, South Africa, Feb. 26, 1852, lost 484, and saved 184. The Saint George, which was bound from Liverpool to New York, was destroyed by fire at sea, Dec. 24, 1852, lost 51, while 79 were rescued and taken to Havre by the American ship Orlando. The Central America, which foundered on her way from Havana to New York, Sept. 12, 1857, carried 579 persons, of whom only 152 were saved. Of the 538 on board the Austria, burned in the middle of the Atlantic, Sept. 13, 1858, but 67 survived.

The Sarah Sands, which sailed from Portsmouth for Calcutta in August, 1857, took fire in November, and afterward experienced a tremendous gale, carried all on board safely port. The Anglo-Saxon, wrecked on a reef off Cape Race, during a dense fog, April 27, 1863, lost 237 out of 446 individuals. The London, which foundered in the Bay of Biscay, January 11, 1866, on the passage from England to Melbourne, lost 220 lives, among whom were Dr. Woolly, Principal of the University of Sydney, and Mr. G. V. Brooke, the tragedian. Two instances have befallen during the past two years, when the dramatic incident, so much used by novelists and dramatists, of a single life being saved from among all on board a lost ship, has really been exemplified. These were in the cases of the Dalhousie, wrecked off Beacy House, Oct. 19, 1853, and the Dunbar, wrecked off Sidney, August 20, 1857.

In the latter instance the survivor was thrown by a gigantic wave into a tiny aperture high up in the face of a precipice—the chance of such a thing occurring being about the same as that of throwing a pea in a nail hole in the side of a wall—where he lay insensible for many hours, but was finally discovered and saved by a daring fellow, who caused himself to be let down from the top of the acclivity by ropes.

The facts we have named, and others that might be cited, indicate a strong preponderance in favor of the supposition that even should the City of Boston have been overtaken by calamity, many and perhaps all her passengers and crew may have been saved. We do not, however, like to abandon the hope that a joyful telegram may yet flash over the Atlantic cable, announcing that this fine ship as well as those who intrusted their lives to it, is still above water.

MURDER AND SUICIDE AT NEW BEDFORD. The Mercury has full particulars of the shooting of Theodore L. Parker by Mrs. Lizzie W. Chapman, and suicide by herself, at New Bedford, Thursday evening, of which the telegraph has made a brief report. The tragedy took place at the boarding house of Mrs. Cornelius Webster, No. 52 Fifth street. Mr. Parker, the victim, was 28 years of age, and belonged to the firm of O. C. & T. L. Parker.—The woman is a daughter of William Duffy. The parties have been intimate for some months, and it is supposed improper relations existed between them. The account says:

"The boarders of the house, among whom were Parker and Mrs. Chapman, sat down to supper at the usual time, and about half-past six the two arose from the table, passed thro' the sitting-room, and into the front entry of the house. Almost immediately three distinct reports of a pistol were heard, and the landlady rushed into the entry just as Parker staggered and fell. Mrs. Chapman was then standing near Parker with a Colt's revolver in her hand, still smoking from a recent discharge. The pistol was taken from the woman by a male boarder, and she then reeled into the sitting room, and with the cry 'I am shot,' fell upon a lounge. Parker was carried into an adjoining bedroom, and almost instantly expired, without uttering a word. Dr. E. R. Johnson was called, and upon examining Mrs. Chapman, found that a pistol ball had passed through her abdomen, the ball going completely through her body, the wound being evidently inflicted by her own hand.—She was made as comfortable as possible, but immediately went into a succession of fainting fits.

Mrs. Chapman's wound was pronounced to be of a serious nature, and medical assistance was promptly given her. What passed in the entry prior to the shooting is known only to the woman, and she is very reticent on the subject.

Shortly after 9 o'clock in the evening Mrs. Chapman was seized with violent pains, and confessed to Dr. Johnson that 'after she was shot' she had taken poison, consisting of a mixture of arsenic and laudanum."

We learn from New Bedford that the woman has since died.

A LONG OCEAN RACE. There is considerable excitement among shipping men and sea captains in reference to the relative sailing qualities of six British iron vessels, which will leave this port during the coming week for Cork and Liverpool. It is seldom that so many vessels of the same class have left so nearly at the same time, and there is considerable betting on the result. Following are the names of the vessels to sail: Ship Yosemite, ship Beringa, ship River Mersey, bark Kenilworth, bark Cerastes, and bark Galatia. There have been several heavy bets in regard to the Cerasies and Yosemite, the latter allowing the former one and one-half days' time for the difference between Cork and Liverpool. No finer fleet of grain-laden vessels as ever left this port, and the hour of their arrival will be looked for with interest. On such occasions there is considerable "driving" of vessels, and it will be a matter of congratulation should each arrive in port without having lost a spar.—San Francisco Alta.

JOHN H. LYNDE, - - PROPRIETOR.

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 30, 1870.

The Democracy of Oregon, now in the agonies of a State Convention, appear to be sadly perplexed with questions long ago settled. They offered a resolution flatly repudiating the National Debt, but suddenly remembering the fate of Pendleton and Seymour, they contented themselves with growling about the illegal manner in which the debt was contracted, complaining that the payment of interest is tantamount to paying the debt twice over, and praying for an equitable adjustment. The more noteworthy of the other resolutions protest against military tyranny, and the importation of Chinamen, and declare that the Fourteenth and and Fifteenth Amendments ought to be repealed Oregon is a lively State, but her Democratic leaders are just a quarter of a century behind the age

Joshua F Bailey, the defaulting Revenue Collector in New York was formerly an usher in the Dwight School of Boston, and subsequently, under the patronage of Hon. Salmon P Chase, was a special agent of the Treasury Department His ability and sagacity were such, that after a brief residence in New York city he was appointed Collector of the Fourth Internal Revenue District under President Lincoln a position which he held for several years His warfare upon the whiskey ring and distilleries was persistent and unrelenting, and he naturally made a large number of enemies He met the charges at Washington, and came out of every investigation triumphant. The Department promoted him to the Thirty second Revenue District, the largest and most important in the United States He soon inaugurated the same raid upon suspected parties that had marked his administration in his former district, and his seizure of books made him most unpopular His absconding under these circumstances is very startling

An Augusta correspondent of the Boston Post says land will be set apart for the new Scandinavian colony somewhere between Presque Isle and Ashland, and probably twenty to thirty miles west of Fort Fairfield Lots of 100 acres each are to be surveyed as soon as practicable under direction of the Land Agent Hon Parker P Burleigh, which are to be given to the proposed settlers upon certain easy conditions Wm W. Thomas Jr of Portland, is to proceed to Sweden as early as possible and get a small number of immigrants to come during the summer and take possession of the land set apart. Mr Thomas, it will be remembered, was for several years a resident of Sweden, in the consular service, and has given much attention to the subject. He proposes to leave upon his missionary work within the next month, and will proceed at once into the interior of the country and endeavor to enlist a goodly number of the most thriving families to come over with him and go at once upon "the reservation" He proposes to get them here in July so that they can fell trees and get the first "burn" during the summer droughts, and be ready for spring planting and sowing, and get established generally Employment can be found for the new laborers in various ways, which will pay from $15 to $20 per month — It is generally believed that the colony can be made a success, and if it is it will be followed up with liberal assistance from the State and the heartiest co-operation of our leading citizens, to enlarge the field of this enterprise and build broad the basis of a new industrial element.

A dispatch from Port Jervis, N Y, states that the large bridge which spans the Delaware river at that place, connecting Port Jervis with Milford, Pa, was blown over Tuesday evening, during the prevalence of a terrific gale which swept down the river — The bridge was almost lifted from the abutments, and fell into the river a perfect wreck, with a crash that was distinctly heard all over the village The bridge was built eighteen years ago by the Erie Railway Company, was 600 feet long and cost $50,000.

The Chicago bankers and merchants protest against the funding bill In spite of their doleful warnings we have no apprehension that National Banks will be found closing their business the moment they find it necessary to take the low-priced bonds which the funding bill provides for The country will hardly be convulsed by the action of the House in passing the bill as it now stands, or that of the President in signing it, all of which is probable during the coming week

Gen Prim got into trouble with a crowd of 2000 persons in Madrid on the 13th, because he refused to shout "Down with the conscription." Stones were thrown at him, but he was not seriously injured In the Cortes the next day Prim said it was no dishonor to be stoned as Washington once was, but if he (Prim) had discovered who it was that hit him he would have shot him on the spot — The impression in Madrid is that Prim has had his day and that important changes must soon take place.

The damage by the storm of Sunday was very severe at Haverstraw, on the Hudson — Between that place and Grassy Point at the southern entrance to the Highlands, no less then ten sloops and schooners were sunk by the gale. "LIVE AND LEARN"

Under the above head, a correspondent at Etna sends us a communication in which he very strongly objects to the statement of the Gardiner Home Journal that the town of Etna is made up of about equal parts of pond bog, solid rock, and loose rock with a very little dirt to hold them together Our correspondent says he has lived in Etna more than fifty years and is well acquainted with the resources of the town He writes that the town contains about 21 square miles of territory, less than fifty acres of which is covered by ponds and adds indignantly there is about 'bog' enough to bury the editor of the Journal in, but not suitable loose rocks enough to mark his burial place if anybody should ever want to find it as for solid rocks we have just about an average lot with the rest of the farming portion of the State of Maine" He says the Journal is mistaken in the statement that Mr. Going Huthon has a mill in Etna, and that he "has cut off all the timber within miles of it," as Mr H has never cut much, if any, timber within the town limits Our correspondent gives the following table to show how the town stands on the State records by comparison with adjoining towns

Towns	Polls	Val	sq miles	av per val
Etna	189	$[illegible]20	21	$[illegible]
Palermo	14	26 715	36	1
Unnel	336	260 118	36	[illegible]
Dixmont	430	456 928	46	806
Plymouth	271	198 350	46	6 78
Newburg,	86	25 264	36	6

"From this table shows Etna in the lead in all but two items, one in Stetson, one in Dixmont, as to valuation Then again we are entirely a farming town, without a village or a mill, while Dixmont has four handsome villages, and there is one at least in each of the other towns The State valuation for 1860, was $162,158,551, in 1870, $219,0[illegible],994 being an increase of valuation of 35 per cent while Etna has gained 49 per cent

"During the Rebellion Etna furnished one country 143 men (including re-enlistments paid them a town bounty after [illegible] from $100 to $300 each, filled all quotas from her own men (no 'paper credits'), paid all their war debt and all other claims, and has a surplus in the treasury of more than $3,000, including school funds, supports summer and winter schools in eight districts and has the high schools Does this look like a 'barren waste'?"

In conclusion, the communication says 'I think the editor stood where the soil is' said he did to see the battle, when he took a view of Etna, on a very high valley,' which he could see a long distance"

Prince Pierre Bonaparte was acquitted Saturday The jury were out one hour The verdict is the universal topic of conversation in France and excites great surprise. He was at once re-arrested on a civil suit, with damages laid at 100,000 francs. He was exceedingly indignant at this new outrage, desiring to leave the court instantly, in order to show, he said, that he was not afraid of the menace against his life.

A Washington special, referring to Senator Sumner's speech on the St. Domingo treaty, says: "Senators of both parties say it was the greatest speech Mr. Sumner ever made in the Senate. Mr. Hunter's reply was the best that could be made, but it has failed of observing Mr. Sumner's objections to the treaty."

OUR ENGLISH CORRESPONDENCE.

American Finances from an English Point of View

BIRMINGHAM England, March 12, 1870

To the Editor of the Whig and Courier

To an American residing abroad there is a peculiar pride in reference to everything which affects the honor and reputation of his country At the present time, in England it is gratifying to hear the remarks which are often made in reference to

OUR NATIONAL FINANCES

The speeches and resolutions offered in Congress by repudiationists of course have their influence and some are heard to say the United States Bonds are a capital investment were it not for the suspicious talk about their repudiation of the debt" An American who knows by whom these speeches are made, and the object of them consisted in a little account, but a feeling exists always and against the matter Our bonds have steadily risen in London till when they stood above 90 Those who are acquainted with the quotations of the two countries understand that the dollar here is the usual pound by the old Spanish standard which is worth $4 84 in American coin This accounts the per cent [illegible] in the American money market I [illegible] he could not [illegible] unless it was to exhibit the bonds and ticket to mystify the people — Bonds are held here to a large extent entirely a farming town, without a village or a mill, while Dixmont has four handsome villages, and there is one at least in each of the other towns The State valuation for 1860, was $162,158,551, in 1870, $219,0[illegible],994 being an increase of valuation of 35 per cent while Etna has gained 49 per cent

"During the Rebellion Etna furnished one country 143 men (including re-enlistments paid them a town bounty after [illegible] from $100 to $300 each, filled all quotas from her own men (no 'paper credits'), paid all their war debt and all other claims, and has a surplus in the treasury of more than $3,000, including school funds, supports summer and winter schools in eight districts and has the high schools Does this look like a 'barren waste'?"

In conclusion, the communication says 'I think the editor stood where the soil is' said he did to see the battle, when he took a view of Etna, on a very high valley,' which he could see a long distance"

THE HANGMAN OF ENGLAND,

Mr Calcraft is getting old and it is proposed to appoint a successor to the veteran who has sent so many wretched beings out of this world The tastes of men are peculiar and there is a multitude of applicants who are anxious to help maintain the vigor of the law When it was known that a vacancy would occur it is said that 149 men presented their qualifications for the office Many of these it is said to fitness in peculiar One man was asking for the situation as I gave this appropriate statement—I am a Boothor — An American friend being in a neighboring town, inquired at a restaurant concerning the person represented by a picture on the wall He was informed that it was the assistant of Calcraft the hangman and happening to make the remark that he thought that a strange office for a man desire, the reply was that it was a very good office, for they were well paid by the Government, besides the perquisites With surprise my friend asked what perquisites there could be and was told that the victim always made the hangman a present besides allowing him the clothes he wore and as it was always customary to have a new suit to be hung in, that he might appear respectable, it was quite an item A celebrated woman in London has wax figures of all the notable criminals on exhibition and pays a large price for the suit that they were in when hung My friend inquired doubtingly if it was customary for the dying man to send a present to the hangman for his services and was assured it certainly was and why not it was the last office he can perform for him and he might as well send it [illegible] Most truly will I remember DR FITZGERALD

FORTY FIRST CONGRESS—SECOND SESSION

WASHINGTON, March 29

SENATE

The Memorial of the heirs of John M. Botts for compensation for property seized during the war, was referred

A bill to prevent election frauds was referred to the Judiciary Committee

The calendar of resolutions coming up Mr Sherman moved and three were passed over in order to reach, if possible, the resolution discharging the Judiciary Committee from the consideration of the Texas bill.

Another resolution came up and Mr Sherman moved that it be passed over

Mr Thurman claimed the floor and that Mr Sherman's motion was out of order

The chair decided that Mr Thurman was out of order

Mr Thurman appealed, but the decision was sustained

The morning hour then expired

The report of the Com on the case of Gen Ames was in order

Mr Sherman moved that it be suspended for the present. After discussion on the motion was agreed to

Finally the bill to admit the State of Texas to representation was passed by a party vote Yeas 47—nays 11

The bill as passed is exactly similar to the bills admitting Virginia and Mississippi

The Senate then went into executive session

A discussion ensued between Trumbull and Sherman, the former urging that the Judiciary Committee receive further time for consideration of the bill, and that prior orders the Georgia bill and the case of Gen Ames be first disposed of

Mr Sherman objected that the Senator from Illinois should dictate the order of business in the Senate and said it would be impossible to reach an early vote on either of the two matters as any Senator who looked around him might see half a dozen speeches yet to be delivered while early action upon the Georgia bill and Gen Ames was desirable. The admission of Texas afforded the most rapid means of accomplishing that desirable end to wit

The official announcement of the adoption of the 15th amendment

Both propositions on Mr Sherman's motion was finally carried

First, to postpone present and prior orders, 48 to 8

Second to discharge the Judiciary Committee 39 to 10

The bill was then read, and the section that the act shall not affect in any manner, conditions and guarantees upon which the State of Texas was annexed and admitted as a State, was stricken out

The bill was then passed without discussion—48 to 11

The Senate then held an executive session of two hours, after which the bill allowing Judge Watrous of Texas, to resign, and continuing his salary for life was passed

Mr Morrill of Maine, from the Committee on Appropriations reported the general deficiency appropriation bill

The Senate then adjourned

HOUSE

Mr Paine of Wis from the Election Committee reported adversely on the claim of Mr Sears as Representative at Large from Virginia giving notice that he would call hereafter for action

Mr Cessna of Pa., from the same Committee in the contested election from the 10th Congressional District of Pennsylvania, with a resolution that John Reading, the sitting member was not entitled to a seat, and that the contestant C A Taylor is entitled to it.

Mr Randall of Pa presented a minority report with the opposite conclusion

Mr Cessna gave notice that he would call up the matter on Tuesday

Mr Schenck of Ohio, gave notice that he would move to close the general debate on the tariff bill to morrow, and that he might move to postpone the consideration of the bill by clauses until Wednesday next

Mr Logan of Ill, caused to be read a letter of Gen. Sherman's to Mr Wilson, relative to the new army bill and in criticism of Mr Logan's speech on the army organization

Mr Logan then said he regretted that the letter called upon him for a reply He understood that the letter was written probably at the suggestion of members of Congress, but he hoped the members would be able to make their own arguments without inviting the General of the Army to make a speech for them. He stated that Senator Wilson denied having invited Gen. Sherman to write the letter or thanking him for having written it He said it was remarkable that the letter had been written at all and that Gen Sherman should use such language He had nothing to say against Gen Sherman, but self respect demanded that he should defend himself and show that his original charges were correct. He said he had spoke of the staff of the army and he spoke of it now.

Mr Slocum of N Y wanted the House and the country to understand that what were called staff officers in the United States were not called staff officers abroad, and that although the staff officers here might number 600, there were five times as many men performing the same duties in European armies

Mr Logan proceeded to quote from the military authorities in contradiction of the assertions of General Sherman as to the bill which he had designated as the "odious army bill" Mr Logan said he had taken it to the Sec'y of War and he wanted him and Gen Sherman to sit down with him (Logan) and go over the bill together That was done and Sec'y Belknap read over the bill, section by section, and Gen Sherman made but two objections to it, and Sec'y Belknap but one and that one he wrote out, and he (Logan) put it in the bill as an amendment. Gen Sherman's objection was to the muster out of general officers, and another objection, which he (Logan) would not mention These were all, and he asked what kind of a task that man had in making a personal attack on him through the newspapers He quoted against Gen Sherman an extract of his report to the Sec'y of War, recommending the assembly of a court of disinterested general officers to which should be committed the whole matter of a reduction and organization of the army, with the transfer of officers to fill vacancies The very first thing provided for in the first section of the bill as to the proposed reduction of the pay of general officers, the President might have informed him that his salary should not be reduced, but that was not Mr Logan's opinion nor the opinion of the House It might be that Gen. Sherman, with a salary, might not be able to give dinners or receptions, but he (Logan) did not care anything about that Mr. Logan protested against the attempts of men in high position to dictate legislation to Congress The legislative department of the government must be free, untrammelled and unfettered He would say to these men in high positions that they were not law makers but law obeyers It was the boys who carried the musket that made generals, and it was they who also made the President

The House then went into Com of the Whole on the tariff bill, having ordered that an hour and a half be allowed for general debate on the bill to-morrow

The House was addressed by Mr Marshall of Ill, a member of the Com on Ways and Means, in favor of free trade He spoke two hours and a half

The House then took a recess

EVENING SESSION.

At the evening session Mr Wilkinson of Minn, made a long speech in favor of a revenue tariff, and at its close Mr Wilson expressed himself as accepting very nearly the views of his colleague.

During the course of a colloquial discussion Mr Allison of Iowa, denied being a free trader He declared himself in favor of a moderate tariff

The House then adjourned

BOSTON ITEMS

RHODE ISLAND LEGISLATURE.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., March 29

The Senate bill to prohibit the sale of liquor and establish a State Constabulary, was postponed in the House to the next session by a vote of 39 to 29.

FROM WASHINGTON

WASHINGTON, March 29.

The San Domingo treaty was discussed in executive session this afternoon Mr Nye advocated its ratification on the ground of commercial necessity and argued that time would come when all the Islands adjacent to our country would be under the protection of the U S, and they would occupy towards the country a position similar to that of sentinels to an army He called upon the Senate not to repudiate the Monroe doctrine but to consecrate themselves anew to its enforcements Senator Patterson followed, taking strong grounds against its ratification He maintained that it was contrary at this time to the interests of the country to acquire any tropical territory whatever the sentiments of the people generally being against such a proceeding and that line of policy Mr Casserly has the floor and will argue against the treaty when it shall again be taken up The time for the exchange of ratification expired to-day, but in the absence of official information the friends of the treaty say they have no doubt that an extension of time could be procured from San Domingo The Senate took no action whatever concerning the treaty

HEADQUARTERS OF THE ARMY
Adjutant General's Office,
Washington, D C, March 29

It has become the painful duty of the General to announce to the army, the death of one of our most exalted Generals, George H Thomas, who expired last evening at half past seven in San Francisco, California.

There is no need to turn to the archives to search for his history, for it is recorded in almost every page during the past ten years but his class-mate and comrade owes him a personal tribute, in which he knows every member of the army shares.

Gen Thomas entered the Military Academy in the class of 1836, graduated in 1840, and was commissioned as 2d Lieut in the Third Artillery, and sent to Florida. He served with his regiment continuously until December 24th, 1853, when he became Captain, having particularly distinguished himself at Monterey and Buena Vista, Mexico. On the 12th of May, 1855, he was appointed to the Second Cavalry as Major, and served with that regiment continuously until he became its Colonel on the 3d of May, 1861

The great civil war found him at his post, true and firm amidst the terrible pressure he encountered by reason of his birth place, Virginia. President Lincoln commissioned him as Brigadier Gen'l of Volunteers, and sent him to Kentucky There too, his services were constant and eminent in the highest degree He won the first battle in the West at Mill Spring, Ky, and from first to last, without an day's or hour's intermission, was at his post of duty, rising steadily and inevitably through all the grades to the one he held as a Major General of the regular army at the time of his death

At Shiloh, Corinth, Perrysaille, Stone River, Chickamauga, Chattanooga, Atlanta and Nashville he fulfilled the proudest hopes of his most ardent friends, and at the close of the war General GEORGE H THOMAS stood in the very front rank of our war generals The General has known Gen Thomas intimately since they sat as boys on the same bench, and the quality in him which he holds up for the admiration and example of the young is his complete and entire devotion to duty Though sent to Florida, Mexico, Texas and Arizona—when his duty there was absolute banishment—he went cheerfully, and never asked the personal favor of exemption or leave of absence

In battle he never wavered, firm and of full faith in his cause he knew it would prevail, and he never sought advancement of rank or honor at the expense of any one Whatever he earned of these were his own and no one disputed his fame, the very impersonation of honesty, integrity and honor, he will stand to us as a beau ideal of a soldier and a gentleman Though he leaves no child to bear his name, the old army of the Cumberland numbered by tens of thousands called father, and will weep for him in tears of manly grief His wife who cheered him with her messages of love in darkest hours of the war will mourn him now in sadness, chastened by the sympathy of the whole country

The last sad rites due him as a man and soldier will be paid at Troy, N Y, on the arrival of his remains, and the friends of his family and of his comrads who can be present, are all invited there, to share in the obsequies

At all the Military Posts and Stations, flags will be placed at half mast and 15 guns fired on the day after receipt of this order, and the usual badge of mourning will be worn for 30 days

By command of Gen Sherman
(Signed) E D TOWNSEND
Adj't Gen'l

Messrs Coleman of Troy and Hall of Boston addressed the Committee on Ways and Means to-day, in opposition to the funding bill, and argued that the compulsory section on national banks would not only be a virtual repudiation, but would break up the banking system by compelling nearly all the banks to withdraw from it and return to the condition of private and State banks, and that the banks could not do business on the basis of the new banks with profit to the stockholders, unless some concession be made in the way of exemption from taxation on circulation and deposits

There is no foundation for the renewed rumors to-night of a change in the Cabinet—The President has thrown out no intimation whatever on which to base any such reports

THE SUCCESS OF TEMPERANCE IN ELLSWORTH

To the Editor of the Whig & Courier

The present good order which prevails in Ellsworth over years when there was little attention paid to the sale of intoxicating liquors [illegible] The first year after the charter of incorporation as a city has been morally an era [illegible] improvement upon the past

We wish the Whig and Courier to publish this fact of the success of the Prohibitory Law and the decrease in the exhibition of disorder and intemperance in our streets

Gov Chamberlain remarks that there is a "growing disrespect for the liquor laws of the State" [illegible] find support.

There is a special virtue [illegible] to come from the enforcement of prohibition—We do not have too much law for any argument [illegible] agency of [illegible] against [illegible] first to it—We have had complete demonstration of the wisdom of the present liquor laws of the State and we have high hopes of the amended form [illegible] recently [illegible] from the Legislature

The efforts [illegible] the people concerning the validity of legislating in the matter of eating and drinking, we are confident are ill grounded and without warrant

The liquor question seems to have caused [illegible] in the State of Massachusetts [illegible] even at this time, in the most perturbed and bewildered condition from the effects of the growing spirit of [illegible] likely soon to sweep [illegible] There is even a worse state of things [illegible] parties are figuring so conspicuously to make capital of this reform Most unfortunately it is seen that certain selfish [illegible] by keeping the question in a tossed state

The offenders in this State, and the first to disturb the peace are those who attack the prohibitory principle In New England the prohibition of the sale of intoxicating liquors for drinking purposes now commands respect and rests on the repeatedly expressed will of the people We ought to put down every [illegible] doubt about the true intent of the principles of the Maine Law

The fact that all license laws in New England open the gates of crime, and work a moral disorder is enough to make us confident in the position to which we are now committed [illegible] more honor comes to the State from a stringent prohibitory law than could ever come by the humiliating and criminal plan which is proposed, viz the plan of requiring the State as it were to superintend the drinking usages of a portion of the inhabitants

No. 5 Nassau Street, New York
February 15th, 1870

The remarkable success which attended our negotiation of the Loans of the CENTRAL PACIFIC RAILROAD COMPANY and the WESTERN PACIFIC RAILROAD COMPANY, and the popularity and credit which these Loans have maintained in the markets, both in this country and Europe, have shown that the First Mortgage Bonds of wisely located and honorably managed Railroads are promptly recognized and readily taken as the most suitable, safe, and advantageous form of investment, yielding a more liberal income than can hereafter be derived from Government Bonds, and available to take their place

Assured that in the selection and negotiation of superior Railroad Loans, we are meeting a great public want and rendering a valuable service—both to the holders of Capital and to those great National works of internal improvement whose intrinsic merit and substantial character entitle them to the use of Capital and the confidence of investors—we now offer with special confidence and satisfaction the

First Mortgage Bonds
OF THE
CHESAPEAKE and OHIO RAILROAD CO

The Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad connecting the Atlantic coast and the magnificent harbors of the Chesapeake Bay with the Ohio River at a point of reliable navigation, and thus, with the entire Railroad system and water transportation of the great West and Southwest forms the additional East and West Trunk Line so imperatively demanded for the accommodation of the immense and rapidly growing transportation between the Atlantic seaboard and Europe on the one hand and the great producing region of the Ohio and Mississippi Valleys on the other

The importance of this Road as a new outlet from the West to the sea magnifies it into one of national consequence and insures to it an extensive through traffic from the day of its completion, while in the development of the extensive agricultural and mineral resources of Virginia and West Virginia, it possesses along its own line, the elements of a large and profitable local business

Thus the great interests, both general and local which demand the completion of the CHESAPEAKE AND OHIO RAILROAD to the Ohio River, afford the surest guarantee of its success and value, and render it the most important and substantial Railroad enterprise now in progress in this Country

Its superiority as an East and West route, and the promise of an immense and profitable trade awaiting its completion have drawn to it the attention and cooperation of prominent Capitalists and Railroad men of this City of sound judgment and known integrity, whose connection with it, together with that of eminent citizens and business men of Virginia and West Virginia, insures an energetic, honorable, and successful management

The Road is completed and in operation from Richmond to the celebrated White Sulphur Springs of West Virginia, 227 miles, and there remain but 200 miles (now partially constructed) to be completed, to carry it to the proposed terminus on the Ohio river at or near the mouth of the Big Sandy river, 150 miles above Cincinnati and 350 miles below Pittsburg

Lines are now projected or in progress through Ohio and Kentucky to this point which will connect the Chesapeake and Ohio with the entire Railroad systems of the West and Southwest, and with the Pacific Railroad

Its valuable franchises and superior advantages will place the CHESAPEAKE AND OHIO RAILROAD COMPANY among the richest and most powerful and trustworthy corporations of the country, and there exists a present value, in completed road and work done equal to the entire amount of the mortgage

The details of the Loan have been arranged with special reference to the wants of all classes of investors and combine the various features of convenience, safety, and protection against loss or fraud

The Bonds are in denominations of

$1000, $500 and $100

They will be issued as Coupon Bonds payable to the Bearer and may be held in that form or

The Bond may be registered in the name of the owner, with the coupons remaining payable to bearer attached, the principal being then transferable only on the books of the Company, unless reassigned to bearer, or

The coupons may be detatched and cancelled the Bond made a permanent Registered Bond transferable only on the books of the Company, and the interest made payable only to the registered owner or his attorney

The three classes will be known respectively as

1st "Coupon Bonds payable to Bearer

2d "Registered Bonds with Coupons attached

3d "Registered Bonds with Coupons detached and should be so designated by Correspondents in specifying the class of Bond desired

They have thirty years to run from January 15 1870, with interest at six per cent per annum from November 1 1869 PRINCIPAL AND INTEREST PAYABLE IN GOLD IN THE CITY OF NEW YORK

The interest is payable in MAY and NOVEMBER, that it may take the place of that of the earlier issues of Five Twenties and suit the convenience of our friends who already hold Central and Western Pacific Bonds, with interest payable in January and July, and who may desire, in making additional investments, to have their interest receivable at different seasons of the year

The Loan is secured by a mortgage upon the entire Line of Road from Richmond to the Ohio River, with the equipment and all other property and appurtenances connected therewith

A SINKING FUND of $100,000 PER ANNUM IS PROVIDED FOR THE REDEMPTION OF THE BONDS TO TAKE EFFECT ONE YEAR AFTER THE COMPLETION OF THE ROAD

The mortgage is for $15,000,000, of which $2,000,000 will be reserved and held in trust for the redemption of outstanding Bonds of the Virginia Central Railroad Company, now merged in the CHESAPEAKE AND OHIO

Of the remaining $13,000,000, a sufficient amount will be sold to complete the road to the Ohio river, perfect and improve the portion now in operation and thoroughly equip the whole for a large and active traffic

The present price is 90 and accrued interest

A loan so amply secured, so carefully guarded, and so certain hereafter to command a prominent place among the favorite securities in the markets, both of this Country and Europe will be at once appreciated and quickly absorbed

Very respectfully,
FISK & HATCH,
Bankers.

P S We have issued pamphlets containing full particulars, statistical details, maps, etc., which will be furnished upon application.

POETRY.

"NO NEWS FROM THE CITY OF BOSTON."

BY MOSES OWEN.

There comes no voice to-night from that drear waste
Where rolls Atlantic 'neath the dark'ning sky;
Whose foame crowned billows with impetuous haste,
Scorn all control—nor pause to give reply.

I hear the cruel gale, fresh from the deep,
Now, laughward, howl its prowess to the night;
In vain Love asks it where her treasures sleep,
It gives no token—speaks but of its might!

I picture to myself a storm tossed bark,
Neath icy mountains battling with despair;
The final crash—the blank—then all grows dark,
And heaven alone records the shriek and prayer!

And still the seas chase on as though in play,
And still the ice-bergs thundering rise and fall!
And naught save man's spoor work hath passed away,
None knoweth why—save One who knoweth all.

'Twere vain to ask the torch how sleep its dead;
'Twere vain to ask the wave what lies beneath;
Yet torch and wave combined need have no dread,
For Hope o'er each points to the victor's wreath.

The sun may rise and set yet tell no tale;
The seasons come and go yet whisper not;
And quivering lips alone, all deathly pale,
May murmur "Gone!—Unheard of!—not forgot!"

God grant she rides the wave and yet may come
Safe from the tempest with her precious freight!
Stout hearts are beating and though lips be dumb
Yet Love proclaims that she can longer wait.

God grant the best our hopes, our prayers, our fears
Ament to-night upon the ocean's foam.
May never despair proclaim with bitter tears,
She sailed triumphant—but she came not home.

THE CRACK IN THE DOOR.

The prettiest house, the prettiest garden, the best servants, and the largest bank account in X——, belong to Mrs. Mehitable Armstrong, widow. Some people also declared that she was the prettiest woman in X——, but these were not the other women. They said that she had red hair and was too fat, and what the gentleman saw to admire in her they couldn't guess, etc., etc.; but say it as often as they might, every man in the place was Hetty Armstrong's devoted servant friend and admirer, and a dozen of them her lovers also. A bright dashing, warm-hearted woman she was; as merry as though she had never known a care. Not that she had forgotten the lover of her youth—the gallant, black-eyed sea captain whose ship had gone down in mid-ocean five years before, and whose pictured face lay near her heart night and day, sleeping and waking—but she was too full of life and hope to live entirely in the past, and loved neither hours of melancholy musing nor what women call a "good cry." To forget all sorrow, if she could, and be as happy as she might, were the two grand rules of her life, and, therefore, people who did not know Hetty Armstrong thought her heartless, and made a great mistake.

They called her a flirt, too, and that was not true, either. She only flirted with those who began the game first, and that a woman has a right to do. At X——, if a gentleman called twice upon a lady, his attentions were reported to be 'very particular,' if he saw her home from meeting, rumor declared that they were 'engaged;' and if he spent an evening with her, they were 'to be married next week' for a certainty; but Hetty Armstrong was somehow not included in the general rule. She had determined to do as she chose. She went everywhere with unmarried gentlemen of her set. She was friendly when she chose to be, and flirted when she liked. After setting gossip afloat a dozen times, she gained her point, and people let her alone. It was Hetty Armstrong's way—that was all—and no indication of matrimonial affections. For years gentlemen had haunted her parlors escorted her hither and thither, sung with her, danced with her, confided in her, and adored her, and village gossip had married her, until suddenly a stranger made his debut at X——, and set the tongues a-going beyond even Hetty Armstrong's power of silencing.

He was tall, he was handsome, he was comparatively young. He had just that touch of the exquisite about him which is so charming when "a man's a man for a' that;" faultless in toilet, faultless in manner, educated, accomplished, altogether charming—he openly flung himself at Hetty Armstrong's feet, and declared himself her admirer. Of course, we do not mean to say that he ruined the knees of his faultless habiliments by going down upon them, or in any other way conducted himself as did the knight of old when heart-smitten; but after the manner of the nineteenth century, he declared his intentions quite as openly.

He sang to and at the lady. He haunted her parlors like a well-dressed ghost. He wrote poetry for the X—— "Luminary," addressed to H. A., and signed C. R.

He breathed deep sighs, and gave soft glances, and said things that might have double meanings. And this, not for a week nor a month, but for a year, at the end of which time Hetty Armstrong began to understand that she was expected by everybody to accept Charles Rokewood when he offered her his heart and hand. Meanwhile, the soft eyes and the sweet voice, the delicate attention and the winning songs of her admirer were not without their effect upon Hetty Armstrong's heart.

It began to be conscious of certain tremors and flutterings in his presence. Her cheeks flushed as they had in her girlhood. Her dreams were not the sober, practical dreams which nature at five-and-twenty should alone indulge in; and as the days rolled on, she felt more conscience that the "yes" which was expected of her would be uttered.

She tried to be prudent and judge the man carefully. The result was that she declared him to be "an angel." At last Hetty Armstrong fairly let go of the rudder of self-will to which she clung so long, and allowed herself to drift down the tide of circumstances which were to lead her into the arms of Charles Rokewood. She let her hand linger on his arm as he bid her good-bye. She smiled up into his eyes as women only smile into eyes they love. She felt that life would be happier with such a bosom to repose upon, and began to wonder whether it really would be necessary for a widow to be married in pearl color when white was so becoming to her complexion. So matters stood when Christmas drew near, and with it Hetty Armstrong's regular Christmas-eve party.

All X——, or nearly all, would be there—even the Rev. Luther Paragon, who amiably forget to say that he disapproved of dancing and charades, when Mrs. Armstrong declared that she "adored them." It was always the merriest party of the season at X——, and this time Mrs. Armstrong decided that she would outdo herself. There was a dash more of coquetry in her dress; a dash of extravagance in the supper, a glitter of rare china, and a perfume of rare flowers in the parlor—just as they say wine warms up the wits and fancy does love at times. All things would be brighter, fresher, more sparkling just now, thought, or rather vaguely felt, the woman who had just begun to know her heart aright, and thought she knew another's.

She stood in her rich dress of silk and lace, flowers in her hair and on her bosom, before her guests arrived, before the grate fire in her parlor, when some one touched her on her shoulder, and, turning, she saw Charles Rokewood.

Her face was a little paler, her eyes more earnest in their look than usual, and a sort of happy terror came upon her as she guessed why he had come so early.

"I knew I should find you alone," he said, "and I have something to say to you—something—"

There she stopped him. "Don't say it now," she pleaded. "I have an evening before me which calls for all my calmness. If it is anything agitating, I—I—I must ask you to wait. After those guests of mine are gone—or tomorrow—I will hear you; not now."

Charles Rokewood bowed. "Your will shall be my law," he said, and took her hand and kissed it. She let him do it, blushing the while, not daring now to look at him.

All the evening, after the others guests were there, her thoughts wandered back to the moment she knew what he would say, and she could answer only in one way, only one—she liked him so well.

"And I have felt so sure I never could like any one again," thought Hetty Armstrong. "There is fate in it."

But she danced and sung and talked as usual, and no one guessed that she was dreaming—not even Mr. Rokewood, who with a chosen friend had slipped away from the parlors, and was smoking and talking in the dressing room. He was a little out of sorts. Hetty, conscious of her duties as hostess, insisted on being public property, and could not be allured into a tete-a-tete; and the women who were ready to be talked to he did not care about. Engaged men are generally known by their bearish conduct to ladies generally. Rokewood, although not engaged, believed himself far enough upon the road to forget his old mayhe, and fell back upon cigars and masculine friends, whenever his lady-love could not be whispered to or gazed at. Consequently, dramatic who thought Rokewood charming were wondering what could have become of him, when Biddy, the waitress, mysteriously beckoned her mistress into the hall, and in an awful whisper said: "more spoons were loaded for the cranes."

"Oh, dear, they must be," said Mrs. Armstrong. "Somehow was my head to forget it?"

I'll get poor Aunt Martha's set from my upstairs china closet. Wait on the stairs until I come to you."

And away ran Mrs. Armstrong to the second floor, where she plunged into a long, old-fashioned closet, and brought forth a legacy of silver ware, left her years before by a maiden aunt. Counting the spoons over, a murmur of voices from the next room fell on her ear. At the same moment she caught the perfume of a cigar. She knew that Charles Rokewood had the richest voice and smoked the best cigars of any man of his set.

"You dear old fellow," she whispered to herself, "I have been so cross to you to-night, but some day I'll be as kind to you as I can, to make up for it."

Then, with a woman's wish to see the face that is so dear to her, she stepped forward and peeped through a crack in the door of the china-closet, which opened into the little sewing room, devoted for this evening to the gentlemen's toilets. Every word was plainly audible when her prying ear approached so closely to the crevice, and the first word rivited her attention. The men were talking of matrimony.

"It's a deuced bore," said the friend. "You are tied to a woman's apron-strings for life. You can't say your soul is your own. Take my advice, and keep out of it altogether, Charles."

"Look here, old fellow," said Charles, taking his cigar from between his lips, "that sort of thing is all a man's fault. You see, when I marry, my first will be to prove myself master. As you begin so you go on, and before my honeymoon is over the woman that takes my name shall know that my will is law, and that hers must yield to it."

The spoons in Mrs. Armstrong's hand rattled together just then, but no one heard them. Charles went on:

"My wife, if I have one, shall have no chance to show her temper. If she does not like my orders, she must obey them without liking. I'll break her in just as I would a horse—bring her down at once to the frame of mind I mean to keep her in; purposely thwart her for a while; contradict her; object to her style of dress; make her alter her way of doing her hair; refuse to dance attendance at church, and make her send regrets to party invitations when she wants to accept. There, I show her at once what she may expect. After a while I might yield a little more; but because I choose, you understand—not to please her."

"Ye-e-s" said the friend, doubtfully; "but you can't think how hard you'd find it; and if you stay out late, they make such a row—sit up for you in a nightcap and cry when you come in."

"I'd manage that," said Rokewood, "by staying out every night until daylight. The one rule I should put in practice would be—never let a woman have her own way." The spoons tinkled a little more, and Mrs. Armstrong's face was terribly flushed, but she listened still.

"Of course you yield a great deal to the woman you are in love with," said Mr. Rokewood, evidently brushing the ashes from his cigar; "but that's because of the romance and all that sort of nonsense, which dies out with the honeymoon. You can find women enough to write poetry to, and to talk sentimental with, married or single. As for your wife, she's the woman that keeps house for you, and the sooner you make her aware of the fact the better. When I marry, Jones, my dear fellow, it will be with no idiotic ideas of perpetual courtship in my mind. I'll begin as I intend to go on, and be master, you can depend upon it."

"But not my master," whispered pretty Mrs. Armstrong; "not mine!"

"Mistress Armstrong, them spoons, plaze," whispered Biddy, at the stairs-head just then.

Hetty Armstrong gathered up the spoons which had slipped loosely down into her lap. She looked at them as they did so. They were solid and elegant, as was all her silver. Her eye glanced about the room, which wealth and taste had made the perfection of elegance and comfort. Her room! She heard adown stairs the merry chat of her guests, the sound of music and dancing.

She remembered that in the kitchen her servants were making ready a supper fit for a king. She turned to the mirror; a handsome woman, still young, and elegantly dressed, glanced proudly back at her. An hour before all this, the woman included, she would have given to Charles Rokewood had he been a beggar. Just a tinge of pain went through her heart. One tear stole down her cheek. Then she gave a little bitter laugh.

"I alone, am queen of me!" she misquoted; and ran out to give the spoons to Biddy.

"It was hard to find them," she said, "but here they are at last."

And she laughed a little less than usual, and not quite naturally.

It was the merriest Christmas-eve party of them all, said every one of her guests, and Hetty Armstrong seemed the merriest there. But no one saw her when the door had closed upon them all, and she was alone in her own chamber. No matter how brief a love-dream has been, the awakenings is always hard, especially if it is sudden.

Hetty Armstrong refused Charles Rokewood the next day, and people who guessed it blamed her bitterly. As for Charles himself, he was amazed an injured and greatly grieved for he never guessed that his lecture on married life had a second auditor; nor that Hetty would have said "Yes" instead of "No" but for "the crack in the door of the china closet."

New Bounty.

Circular to Soldiers & their Heirs.

April 15th, 1861, President Lincoln, by Proclamation, called for 75,000 Volunteer Soldiers to suppress Rebellion.

He promised soldier's legal pay to each man, and also $100 Bounty to every man who should enlist under his Proclamation, to be paid by the United States when honorably discharged.

This $100 Bounty has, up to this time, been refused to all soldiers who enlisted under that call, unless they were discharged for sickness, or on surgeon's certificate of disability, who were in the service less than two years; though clearly entitled by the words and spirit of the President's Proclamation.

The Supreme Court of the United States has decided that this promised Bounty must now be paid, and I am prepared to obtain it for every soldier who enlisted before July 22d, 1861, who received an honorable discharge for disability, sickness, or on surgeon's certificate of disability.

Soldiers can call at my office personally, send by mail, or otherwise.

It is very desirable to have the soldier's discharge in all cases, as the Bounty can be more readily collected; but the Bounty can be obtained when the discharge is lost, or cannot be had.

☞ Also, it is decided that soldiers with the pension of $300 Bounty, to be paid by installments, and who have not been fully paid the full amount, though discharged by expiration of service, or because their services were no longer required are now entitled to the remaining installment-pension.

☞ A bill has passed one branch of Congress giving the $100 to the widow, children or parents of all soldiers who died in the army, where the soldier enlisted for one year or less.

This will give $100 to the heirs of all soldiers who died in the service, belonging to any nine months or three months regiments, or even less.

I shall give particular attention to these classes of cases, and I have full records in the case of every Maine soldier.

☞ There are several other classes of cases where Bounty, Pension, Prize Money, Mileage, or Back claims are due; especially are there many meritorious claims for Pension due dependant mothers or fathers of soldiers who lost their lives in the army.

In many such cases applications have been made, but remain unsettled for want of proof, or from neglect, and frequently incompetency of the agent who filed the claim. This class of cases I will attend to. Also, I will continue to obtain Pensions for all wounded and disabled soldiers, or, in case of death of the soldier, for their widows or children.

☞ A bill is going before Congress giving $175 to each soldier who has lost a leg or arm in the army. It is believed this Bill will pass.

All advice free relating to these claims. Pensions paid to Pensioners without extra charge.

SOLDIERS OF 1861.

$100 Bounty.

The Supreme Court of the United States has just decided that those Soldiers who enlisted under the first call of the President, prior to July 22d, 1861, and who were honorably discharged upon a Surgeon's certificate of disability, are entitled to a bounty of $100.

This bounty has heretofore been refused to Soldiers who served less than two years, unless discharged on account of wounds. Under the decision, it will be paid to those discharged by reason of disease.

We are authorized to procure this bounty, and will collect it for those entitled, promptly, and at the lowest rates.

Applications will be sent by mail upon request, to those who cannot call at our office. Those for whom we have not previously done business will please forward their discharges to us, and we will send the necessary papers by return mail.

As these claims will accumulate at the Department, soldiers will see the policy of sending their discharges early, in order that their applications may be filed immediately.

Sinking Slowly.

One of the most dangerous diseases with which mankind are afflicted is that of the Liver. Its derangements are the cause of more than one-half the diseases that afflict humanity, but manifests itself in its most deadly and insidious form in that of chronic torpidity, although it does not stop there in its worst extremities. Yellow Dock, Sassafras, Mandrake, Dandelion, Wild Cherry, Burdock, Blood Root, Butternut, and Stillingia, are the principal ingredients of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, which is a sovereign remedy for this disease, if used according to directions. There is nothing in the world possibly combining in the same degree the tonic properties, blood cleansing, and nutritive qualities of this wonderful medicine. It is purely vegetable, and perfectly harmless in any condition of the system. Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Biliousness, Chronic Diarrhœa, Nervous Affections, and all diseases arising from a disordered liver, stomach, or blood, speedily yield to its use.
